

Risk Awareness Workshops

Hamilton Leigh's Risk Awareness Workshops helps retail automotive and valeting sector clients identify, evaluate and control the risks they are subject to in a balanced and cost-effective way. As well as creating an improved culture and an attitude of collective responsibility, risk management awareness helps dealership staff understand hazards and risk and ultimately prevent accidents/incidents from taking place.

This programme is recognised by the specialist motor trade insurers and has a proven track record of creating a safer working environment and achieving significant cost benefits for dealerships and valeting companies.

If you are looking to minimise what may be one of your highest areas of cost, you will need to improve your claims experience. Introducing a risk management strategy, supported by a series of Risk Awareness Workshops for all employees is the best way to achieve this.

Our knowledge of the retail automotive and valeting sectors enables us to immediately identify where and why a particular business is under-performing from a claim point of view, in relation to its peers.

We can put together action plans to tackle poor claims performance, reduce costs and improve resilience to risk.

We will help you identify, evaluate and control the risks that face your business, forging the foundations for long-term success. By equipping you with the correct and practical risk management tools, our risk management team will aid you in the design and delivery of your new risk management strategy.
